

UK's Treasury Agency implements Safecom's InfoAware © LMS.

NS&I, the UK government-backed savings and investment provider has successfully rolled out Safecom's InfoAware LMS for agency-wide Information Security training.

Cambridge, UK, 3 September 2007. Safecom, the developer of the popular InfoAware LMS – Learning Management System, today announced that NS&I has successfully completed corporate roll-out of its InfoAware LMS licence.

In 2006 NS&I selected Safecom's InfoAware as the LMS of choice for the Agency. The modules purchased are being used to improve IT security awareness for staff at all levels throughout the business.

Steve Fletcher, Technology Manager with NS&I said: "The awareness training was installed on laptops for staff to watch the 20 minute session at their convenience. The module was designed to convey the key IT security messages to our staff and feedback has been encouraging."

James Williams, Safecom MD, added "We warmly welcome NS&I's successful roll-out of Safecom's Information Security LMS. As one of our first UK central government clients and at the very heart of UK government, Information Security is critical to NS&I. That they chose Safecom as a key part of their InfoSec training approach speaks volumes for our product content and technology. We will continue to work with NS&I to ensure our product remains fully relevant to the NS&I's Information Security training requirements. "

In recent months Safecom has announced significant sales of InfoAware LMS © to customers in the private, public, voluntary, NHS and central government sectors.
